The Rhetoric Of Terror: Reflections On 911 And The War On Terror

Marc Redfield

The Rhetoric Of Terror - Reflections on 911 and the War on Terror All terror is rhetorical, for terror tries to be persuasive. It tries to convince a public to think and feel one thing rather than another. But surrounding the rhetoric of terror is a vast field of study and analysis. This collection of essays explores the rhetoric of terror in the post-9/11 world, examining how it has been used to shape public opinion and to sustain a war on terror.

The essays cover a wide range of topics, from the role of media in shaping public opinion to the impact of terrorism on political discourse. The authors include some of the leading figures in the field of rhetoric and terrorism, including Marc Redfield, who has written extensively on the subject.

The book is a valuable resource for anyone interested in the rhetoric of terror and its role in shaping contemporary politics. It is also a must-read for those who want to understand the ways in which terror is used to control public opinion and to sustain violent conflicts.
